Mission Statement

The English Department of the University of Dhaka is one of the core departments of the institution. Set up in 1921, its mission from the beginning has been to establish itself as the chief centre of English Studies in this part of the world and to produce graduates who are highly skilled in the English language and who have absorbed the great tradition of writing in English encapsulated in the classics of English, American, South-Asian, African and Caribbean literature. The Department also considers its mission to produce graduates who can wield the language effectively in a competitive world to advance themselves as well as the nation towards progress and prosperity without losing sight of the humanizing nature of English Studies.

SHORT HISTORY OF THE DEPARTMENT

The Department of English at the University of Dhaka has a long and distinguished history. It was one of the first twelve departments that the university started with on July 1, 1921. Students and teachers of the Department of English contributed in establishing and developing the nation's cultural and literary landscape and their names have a place in Bangladesh's history. Lila Nag, a student of this Department, was the first woman graduate of the University of Dhaka. Famous literary geniuses like Buddhadev Bose and Munier Chowdhury have graduated from the department.

In the seventies and eighties teachers like Professor Kabir Chowdhury, Professor Serajul Islam Choudhury, Professor Ahsanul Haque, Professor Husniara Haq and Professor Razia Khan Amin made great contributions in the socio-political and literary fields of the country. Some of them were prolific writers in both Bangla and English. National Professor Kabir Chowdhury, after his retirement, became a part-time teacher in the department. Professor Serajul Islam Choudhury is the present Professor Emeritus of the department. Both of them have made notable contributions in the fields of Bangla and English language and literature.

During the liberation war of Bangladesh in 1971, both teachers and students of the Department played active and glorious roles. Some took on the vital role of organizing the freedom struggle inside the country while others fought on the war front. Professor Dr. Jyotirmoy Guhathakurta was martyred on the fateful night of March 25, 1971, while Mr. Rashidul Hasan, a Senior Lecturer, was abducted and killed by the Al-Badr on December 14, 1971, just before Victory Day. The Literature Seminar of the department has been named the Guhathakurta-Rashid Seminar in their honour. In 2008, the Chair of that time, Professor Dr. Khondakar Ashraf Hossain, took the initiative to build a wooden installation on the wall of the seminar library as a memorial for the teachers and students of the Department martyred during the liberation war of Bangladesh. Professor Kaiser Md. Hamidul Haq actively participated in our glorious liberation war.

FROM THE PAGES OF HISTORY

Buddhadeva Bose

- Buddhadeva Bose (1908–1974) was a major Indian Bengali writer of the 20th century.
- Buddhadeva Bose received the Sahitya Akademi Award in 1967 for his verse play Tapaswi-O-Tarangini, the Rabindra Puraskar in 1974 for Swagato Biday (poetry); he was honoured with a Padma Bhushan in 1970.

Munier Choudhury

- Munier Choudhury (27 November 1925–14 December 1971), was a Bangladeshi educationist, playwright, literary critic and activist.
- He received the Bangla Academy Prize (1962), Daud Prize (1965) and Sitara-e-Imtiaz in 1966.

Leela Roy

- Leela Roy née Nag (2 October 1900–11 June 1970) was the first female graduate of the University of Dhaka.
- Leela Nag was a social activist emphasizing education for girls. She started the second girls school in Dhaka. She was also a politician and reformer and a close associate of Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose.

THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT TODAY

The Department of English, University of Dhaka, is now a nationally reputed centre for academic excellence and literary creativity. The Department is situated on the first floor of the Arts Building. It has a multimedia room and a computer lab to provide technical support to the students. It has two seminar libraries: the Guhathakurata-Rashid Seminar is the Literature Library and the Abi Md. Nizamul Huq Seminar is the Language Library. The Department publishes the peer-reviewed journal Spectrum which features original scholarly articles, book reviews, translations, interviews and creative pieces.

The Department offers courses for four-year B.A. Honors degrees in English. At the M.A. level, students can pursue either Applied Linguistics and ELT or English Literature degree. The Department also offers M. Phil and Ph.D. degrees. Many students from foreign countries, including India, Korea, Nepal, Iran, Iraq, Turkey, Libya, Palestine and Somalia have studied in the Department in the past.

Scholarships and stipends are available for meritorious as well as needy students. These are provided by alumni and donors. The department arranges workshops, seminars, memorials and cultural programmes on a regular basis. Students participate in extracurricular activities such as sports, drama, debate, public speaking and cultural programmes.

Presently, there are thirty-four full-time faculty members, one Professor Emeritus, one Supernumerary Professor and six part-time teachers working for the department. Some of them have specialized from reputed foreign universities in British, American, Caribbean and Postcolonial literature, while others have advanced qualifications in ELT, Applied Linguistics and TESOL.

The English Department teaching faculty comprises highly qualified academics and professionals. They keep themselves updated by engaging in professional activities. These include research, conducting and participating in workshops, national and international seminars and conferences. They have published extensively in academic journals at home and abroad. Professors of the department have followed the footsteps of their peers in making significant contributions in the cultural and literary arenas of the country and have won several awards and prizes in recognition of their works.

Professor Syed Manzoorul Islam won the Pope Memorial Gold Medal in 1972 for his performance in the B.A. Honours examination, and Fazlur Rahman Gold Medal in 1973 for his performance in the M.A. examination. He also won the Bangla Academy Award in 1996, Prothom Alo “Book of the Year” award in 2005, and Kagaj Sahitya Purashkar (Kagaj Literary Award) in 2006, and Katha Sahitya Kendra Literary award in 2011.

Professor Dr. Kaiser M. H. Haq won the Pope Memorial Gold Medal for his performance in the B.A. Honours examination, and the Fazlur Rahman Gold Medal for his performance in the M.A. examination. He received the Bangla Academy Puroshkar (Literature Award) in the Translation Category for 2012.

Professor Dr. Fakrul Alam received the Bangla Academy Puroshkar (Literature Award) in the Translation Category for 2013 and the SAARC Literature Award, 2012. He has been Scholar-in-Residence at Clemson University, USA. He has published extensively internationally as well as nationally.

The current Chair, Professor Dr. Rubina Khan, a specialist in Applied Linguistics and ELT/TESOL, has distinguished herself in academic research. She has published in books and journals at home and abroad and given seminar & conference presentations internationally and nationally. She won the Leadership and Management Special Interest Group (SIG) award at the 45th International Association of Teachers of English as a Foreign Language (IATEFL) Conference in 2011.

Among teachers who have passed away in the last decade are Professor Razia Khan Amin, Professor Khondakar Ashraf Hossain and Professor Ahsanul Haque. They have made significant contribution to our literature and to the deparment. Quite a few distinguished faculty have retired in the past few years, including Professor Niaz Zaman who is known both for her academic and creative contributions. Additionally, Professor Nafisa Jamal, Professor Rebecca Haque, Professor Kazal Krishna Banerjee, Professor Nuzhat Amin, Professor Shamsad Mortuza, Rumana Siddique and Batool Sarwar are among departmental teachers who have distinguished themselves as creative writers.

SEMINAR LIBRARIES

The Department houses two seminar libraries: the Shahid Jyotirmoy Guhathakurta-Shahid Rashidul Hasan Seminar and the Abi Md. Niazmul Huq Seminar. The Guhathakurta- Rashid Seminar is the Literature library and is located next to the Department office. This library is well furnished for undergraduate and graduate work in English language and literature. To provide students with resources for assignments and research, there is also a wide range of relevant reference and theoretical textbooks on literature. In addition to books, the library has four computers with internet access for online research.

The Abi Md. Nazmul Huq Seminar is the language library and contains books related to Applied Linguistics and English Language Teaching (ELT), Teacher Education etc. It is located in Room 2077. This library also has three computers where students can access the internet for academic purposes.

These libraries aim to provide a quiet study area for students. To avail library facilities students have to pay a subsidized membership fee and use library cards for access to seminar facilities.

The working hours of these libraries are 9.00 am- 4.00 pm (Saturday to Thursday).

STUDENT SUPPORT

STUDENT ADVISORS

There are three full-time student advisors appointed to ensure the welfare of students and help them with any problems they may face. The advisors may be consulted on issues relating to registration formalities, academic matters, scholarship information and personal matters. Students should feel free to contact the advisors during their office hours or any other time by appointment. The current student advisors are Mahfida Tahniat, Munasir Kamal and Zaynul Abedin.

MENTORING PROGRAMME

The English Department Mentoring service was introduced on September 7, 2014 for the students of the English Department under a British Council project called INSPIRE DEWS. This was a groundbreaking initiative as it was the very first mentoring service offered at the University of Dhaka. Students are encouraged to avail the service, which is open five days a week from 9.00 am – 4 pm at the HEQEP Lab - 2 of Arts Building (Room No. 1039).

The mentors have been trained to provide guidance regarding various academic issues as well as university facilities and procedures.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT CAREER COUNSELLING SERVICES

The Department of English will soon start the English Department Career Counselling Services (EDCCS) with the help of funds sanctioned by the English Department Alumni Society (EDAS). EDCCS will provide advice to graduating students of the department and offer job placement opportunities in different organizations by conducting regular workshops and seminars tailored towards the development of requisite job skills. In addition, it aims to organize job fairs to facilitate on-campus recruitment of department graduates. Furthermore, EDCCS will invite guest speakers from various organizations to share their expertise on the job search process and the job market and to better equip students to face the challenges ahead. Department teachers will also be available for consultation for 3 hours every week on a rotation basis. The office of EDCCS is located at Room 415, Lecture Theatre, University of Dhaka.

AWARDS, SCHOLARSHIPS AND STIPENDS

The Department offers both merit-based and need-based stipends. The funds are provided by the alumni and different donors. These scholarships are offered annually and notices are posted for student applications. Scholarships are supervised by the Student Advisors and students may contact them for inquiries. At present, the following awards are offered:

- Anwaruddin Award
- Shahid Nasim Mohsin Memorial Stipend
- S. F. Haider Foundation Scholarship
- G. A. Khan Memorial Scholarship
- Principal Jalaluddin Ahmed Trust
- Razia-Nawab Scholarship
- (Late) Professor Jahan Ara Chowdhury and (Late) Mr. Nurullah Chowdhury Memorial Scholarship
- A. Samad (M.A. Leeds) Memorial Scholarship
- Abdul Awaal-Feroza Begum Memorial Scholarship
- Sirajul Haq Chowdhury and Samiul Haq Chowdhury Memorial Scholarship
- Majid Ul Haq and Mumtaz Jahan Zebunissa Majid Trust Fund
- Professor Dr. Razia Khan Amin Trust Fund

STUDENT CLUBS

The Department encourages its students to take part in co-curricular and extra-curricular activities. Students wishing to participate may consider joining one or more of the clubs run by students and supervised by teachers.

Clubs at the department include: Literary Club, English Department Drama Club, Film Club and others. In addition, Krishnachura, established on April 14, 2011 by Late Professor Khandaker Ashraf Hossain, is a vibrant cultural organization of the department. The members of these clubs are also invited to take part in various programs organized by the department throughout the academic year. These include Freshers' Welcome, Farewell Reception, Literary and Cultural festivals such as Shakespeare Fest, Women's Day Celebrations, Centenary celebrations of renowned writers like Henrik Ibsen, Doris Lessing, Chinua Achebe and Ernest Hemingway.

SPORTS

English Department students regularly take part in university and inter-university sport events and tournaments. Interested students may participate in various sports events. The departmental Cricket, Football, and Basketball teams have enjoyed considerable success in Inter-Department Competitions winning trophies on several occasions. The departmental Basketball Team had its golden days in 2001-2005, achieving a record-breaking success by winning the Championship Trophy five-times consecutively in the Inter-Department Basketball Competitions. The Cricket and Football teams have also made their mark in recent times. Students of the department have also excelled in individual sports such as Chess, Carom, Table Tennis, Judo and Karate.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

Academic dishonesty or academic misconduct is any type of cheating that occurs in relation to a formal academic exercise (including tutorial assignments, presentations, in-course, mid-term and final examinations). It can include:

Plagiarism: The adoption or reproduction of original creations of another author (person, collective, organization, community or other type of author, including anonymous authors) without due acknowledgment. In other words, plagiarism is taking the ideas or words of someone else and using them as one's own. Direct quotes or summary of other authors' ideas may be used in students' own academic essays with due acknowledgment of the original sources.

Fabrication: The falsification of data, information, or citations in any formal academic exercise.

Cheating: Any attempt to give or obtain assistance in a formal academic exercise (like an examination) without due acknowledgment.

Students are expected to complete their own original work as authorized by the course instructor. If the students recycle his/her course work for class activities, he/she may be committing academic dishonesty. If anyone presents someone else's work as one's own, deliberately provides wrong information about academic matters to any official in the department or university he/she is committing an act of academic dishonesty.

Penalties for academic dishonesty (plagiarism, fabrication and cheating):

Various disciplinary measures will be taken against any act of academic dishonesty depending on the degree of violation. The faculty may issue a verbal warning; fail the student for the course; the disciplinary committee might counsel term suspension from the department; recommend suspension or expulsion under the University of Dhaka disciplinary board. The University of Dhaka has a policy regarding academic conduct and offenders may receive punitive measures accordingly.

Sexual Harassment Policy

The Department of English will take strict and prompt action against any student found guilty of sexual harassment. Any student who feels that she/he is being subject to sexual harassment should contact one of the student advisors or any other teacher immediately.

Offenders may be recommended for expulsion from the department by the disciplinary committee.

PROJECTS

With the financial aid and support of the World Bank and the University Grants Commission of Bangladesh, and under the supervision of HEQEP (Higher Education Quality Enhancement Project), a two-year long project 'Improvement and Innovation in English Teaching-Learning' was started in 2011. Professor Dr. Fakrul Alam was in charge of the project as the Sub-project Manager. The project was a highly acclaimed venture on its completion. The University of Dhaka further recommended the project to be turned into a research centre in 2013. It is now the Centre for English Teaching and Research (CETR).

The Department of English at University of Dhaka, Bangladesh had been awarded INSPIRE (International Strategic Partnership in Research and Education) funding for running a project (From December 1, 2013) titled DEWS (Dhaka University Writing Service) with the Institute of Education, University of Manchester as the Higher Education Institution from UK. INSPIRE is a British Council funded project that aims to significantly strengthen academic and research partnerships between UK Higher Education Institutions (HEI) and other HEIs across the world. The DEWS project aims to train junior faculty and graduate students to build a teaching team who will mentor freshmen and help them acquire academic and professional writing skills. The project has successfully introduced the department's mentoring programme and redesigned writing courses (ENG 101, ENG 104 and ENG 204). Due to the successful implementation of the project aims the department has received funding for two consecutive phases and is currently preparing to enter the third phase.

CENTRE FOR ENGLISH TEACHING AND RESEARCH (CETR)

The Centre for English Teaching and Research (CETR) is based at the Department of English, University of Dhaka. Approved by the Academic Council (August 14, 2012) and Syndicate of the University of Dhaka (September 12, 2012) CETR is an organization which intends to use state-of-the-art equipment and practices allowing it to blend face-to-face teaching with online work and research in an excellent learning environment. CETR provides certificate, diploma and degree teaching courses, training and professional courses for the development of English language and literature teaching professionals. The Centre also aims to strengthen academic links, collaboration and exchanges between the Department of English and institutions engaged in English Studies/ELT research in Bangladesh and the world outside. Professor Tahmina Ahmed is the Director of the Centre.

MA Programme Structure

Programme Structure

Duration : 1 year
Semesters : 2
Each Semester : 26 weeks

Semester I: Semester one will comprise four 4-credit courses each carrying 100 marks and one 1-credit course of 25 marks.

$$100 \times 4 = 400 \text{ Marks (16 credits) and 25 marks (1 credit)}$$

Semester II: Semester II will also comprise four 4-credit courses each carrying 100 marks and one 1-credit course of 25 marks.

$$100 \times 4 = 400 \text{ Marks (16 credits) and 25 marks (1 credit)}$$

Total number of 4-credit courses	: 8	Marks: $100 \times 8 = 800$	Each course: 4 credits
Total number of 1-credit courses	: 2	Marks: $25 \times 2 = 50$	Each course: 1 credit
Total marks	: $(800 + 50) = 850$
Total Credits	: $(4 \times 8) + (2 \times 1) = 34$

Required contact hours for each 1-credit course: 15 teaching hours

Required contact hours for each 4-credit course: 60 teaching hours

Teaching and Evaluation of 4-credit courses of 100 marks each:

- Each 4-credit course will be taught and evaluated by two teachers of the Department. Each course teacher will have one and a half hours of class time per week for fifteen weeks in a semester for each 4-credit course.

- b) Midterm tests will be given in the middle of the semester. The duration of midterm tests will be 2 hours. Total marks for the Midterm tests will be 30. Each teacher will give a test of 15 marks. In some courses, students may be required to submit assignments/research papers and do other tasks as part of midterm tests.
- c) Semester final examinations will be held for every course at the end of each semester. The duration of semester final examination will be 4 hours and total marks will be 60. Two teachers will set questions and evaluate the scripts. Marks obtained in the semester final examinations will be the average of the two marks.
- d) Class attendance and participation will carry 10 marks for each 4-credit course. Each course teacher will give marks out of 5 and marks of the two teachers will then be added. Teachers may give marks using the following rating scale:

Attendance in 90% or above classes may be given 5 marks, 85% to less than 90%--- 4 marks, 80% to less than 85% -- 3 marks, 75% to less than 80% --2 marks, 60% to less than 75%--- 1 mark, and below 60%---- 00.

Teaching and Evaluation of 1-credit courses of 25 marks each: Presentation 10 Marks and Viva Voce 15 Marks

- a) For the 1-credit courses, students will be divided into small groups and each group will be assigned with one teacher. They will be evaluated through presentations in both semesters. There will be no written test for 1-credit courses.
- b) There will be an oral examination at the end of each semester. The examination committee will hold this examination at the end of the semester final examination.

Class Attendance Requirements:

- a. Class attendance is compulsory for each student.
- b. Students with 75% and above in each course will be eligible to sit for semester final examinations.

- c. Students with attendance below 75% going down to 60% will be considered non-collegiate and will be allowed to sit for the examinations only after paying the required university fines.
- d. Students with attendance below 60% will not be eligible to appear at the examinations.

Grading Scale and Grades:

Marks obtained in each course will be transferred to grades leading to GPA (Grade Point Average).

The conversion chart based on UGC guidelines is given below:

Numerical Grades	Letter Grades	Grade Points (1 units)
80 and above	A+	4.00
75 to less than 80	A	3.75
70 to less than 75	A–	3.50

MA in Literature Programme

MA in Literature

The programme at the Department of English, University of Dhaka is a comprehensive one year programme aimed at enhancing our students' knowledge of literature in global English.

The course builds upon the BA (Hons.) in English Literature by moving beyond the Western canon to incorporate other literatures and introduces students to modern twentieth century and contemporary approaches to studying literature. Students will engage in independent literary analysis from an interdisciplinary perspective and will learn to engage with ongoing theoretical debates and discursive practices.

The programme equips students with the knowledge required to meet the high standards of academic research such as using professional journals and introduce students to bodies that publish academic research online. Students will learn to make appropriate use of the conventions of writing in literary studies and to refer accurately and appropriately to texts and sources. It also aims to foster the overall development of the students' critical and intellectual faculties to allow them to develop their knowledge of literature and bolster their skills to review, research, write and publish papers of an international standard.

Course Code : Eng 508
Course Title : Cultural Studies
Credits : 4
Full marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

The aim of this course is to introduce students to the concept of cultural studies. Cultural Studies is an interdisciplinary field where theories from different disciplines are analyzed to understand culture in its various manifestations: the complex and multifaceted relations of culture and society, culture and class, and culture and power. Students will focus on how cultural processes and products are conceptualized, distributed, consumed and responded to in diverse ways.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- form a comprehensive idea about culture and different forms of culture, and the relationship between society and power
- learn about the major factors determining identity, ethnicity, race and gender relations
- demonstrate understanding of concepts of ideology, power, hierarchy and other factors influencing culture
- understand what cultural turns are taking place with the advent of postmodernism, visual culture, the internet, and artificial intelligence

engage in interdisciplinary analysis when they connect literary theories to cultural studies

Course Content and Description

This course has two main streams. The first stream deals with the prominent scholars of Cultural Studies, such as Raymond Williams, Louis Althusser, Stuart Hall, Jean-Francois Lyotard and Mikhail Bakhtin. Their theories on power structures and society will be extensions of the theories studied in other courses. In the second stream, mass and popular culture are introduced. Selected essays on image representation and identity will be taught.

Students are expected to read the following:

Roland Barthes, “Rhetoric of the Image”

Raymond Williams, “The Analysis of Culture”

Laura Mulvey, “Visual Pleasure and Narrative Cinema”

Michel Foucault, “Method”
 Antonio Gramsci, “Hegemony, Intellectuals and the State”
 Mikhail Bakhtin, “Carnival and Carnavalesque”
 Jean-François Lyotard, “The Postmodern Condition”
 Stuart Hall, “Notes on Deconstructing 'the Popular'”
 C. W. Watson, “Multiculturalism in Historical Perspective”
 Christine Geraghty, “Soap Opera and Utopia”
 Jacqueline Bobo, “The Color Purple: Black Women as Cultural Readers”
 Michael de Certeau, “Walking in the City”
 Ashish Rajadhyaksha, “The 'Bollywoodization' of the Indian Cinema”
 Donna Haraway, “A Cyborg Manifesto”
 Theodor Adorno and Max Horkheimer, “Enlightenment as Mass Deception”
 Walter Benjamin, “The Work of Art in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction”

Course Title : Continental Literature
Course Credit : 4
Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

The course aims to make students aware of the diversity in literature written in English by introducing them to modern European literature. Students will engage with a wide variety of texts by European writers of the late 19th to early 20th century to gain an understanding of socio-cultural and continental influences in which texts are produced and received. The course objectives include encouraging students to read and analyze the texts in the light of wider global perspectives, using theoretical constructs relevant to the texts.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- develop and demonstrate an awareness of the significance of Continental literature in the global arena
- gain a comprehensive knowledge of post-world war conventions, conflicts and issues of Europe
- enhance their abilities of inter-textual analysis

Course Description and Content

The course teaches novel, drama and poetry written by the prominent writers of the modern and postmodern movements in Europe. It examines the different strategies used by the writers to portray the European sociocultural and political milieu. This course also highlights the underlying theoretical constructs and key issues of Absurdism, Existentialism, Surrealism, Hyperrealism, Futurism among others.

Texts covered in this course include:

Henrik Ibsen, A Doll's House
Charles Baudelaire, Selected Poems
Franz Kafka, The Metamorphosis

Course Title : Women and Literature
Course Credit : 4
Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to give students an in-depth view of a range of debates on gender prevailing in academia. While the course will encourage students to broadly question normative gender roles, it will also help students to distinguish the intersections of gender, race, class, religion, and geographical location. The course, therefore, introduces students to the works of women writers representing diverse cultures and concerns.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- demonstrate an understanding of the gender debates and arguments articulated by the authors in the syllabus
- recognize the diversity amid the apparent unity that feminist authors represent
- recognize the intersections between feminism and postcolonialism
- make connections between the problems posed in the theoretical and the creative texts

Course Content and Description

The course contains theoretical and creative works on women's issues by writers from Africa, South Asia, Europe and North America. Even within the same geographical region, there are writers from different ethnicities. The writings range from the nineteenth century to contemporary times. The idea is to expose learners to as much diversity as possible to break away from the construct of feminism as a Western concern.

Selections from the following will be covered in class:

Critical Writings

Simone de Beauvoir, The Second Sex (Introduction; Chapter XI – Myth and Reality)
Helene Cixous, The Laugh of the Medusa (extract)
Jane Flax, “Postmodernism and Gender Relations in Feminist Theory”
Judith Butler, “Performative Acts and Gender Constitution”
Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak, “Three Women's Texts and a Critique of Imperialism”
bell hooks, “Postmodern Blackness”
Carole Stabile, Feminism and the Technological Fix (extract)

Novels

Virginia Woolf, Orlando
Jean Rhys, Wide Sargasso Sea
Bapsi Sidhwa, Ice Candy Man

Course Title : Translation Studies
Credits : 4
Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce learners to the theory and practice of translation. It will also focus on the most significant developments in the history of the academic discipline of translation studies. Besides providing students with intellectual and philosophical insights into the practice of translation, this course intends to enhance learners' practical translation skills. It will require students to translate poetry, prose, drama extracts and non-literary texts from English to Bangla and vice versa.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, the students should be able to:

- understand key concepts of translation studies as an academic discipline
- evaluate translated texts in the light of translation theories as well as issues such as gender, power relations and postcolonialism.
- put their theoretical knowledge into practice while translating texts from a source language to a target language

Course Content and Description

This course will cover two aspects of the art of translation: theory and practice. Through it students will become familiar with theoretical aspects of translation studies and receive practical training in translation by engaging in translating texts from English to Bangla and vice versa.

The contents of the course include:

- Types of translation
- Translation processes
- The unit of translation
- Equivalence in translation
- Text, genre and discourse shifts in translation
- Untranslatability
- Loss and gain in translation
- Agents of power in translation
- Ideology and translation
- History of translation theory
- Problems of translating prose, poetry and drama
- Evaluating translations of texts from English to Bangla and vice versa.
- Cultural translation
- Machine translation

Course Title : Latin American Literature

Course Credit : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce students to a range of texts by authors from Latin America. Learners will gain an understanding of how the legacy of colonialism is reflected in the region in the works of authors and be able to connect the texts with other postcolonial literatures. The course is designed to familiarize students with some of the problems and debates about Latin American history, society, and culture.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- perceive the importance of literatures outside the British canon
- understand colonialism in its different manifestations and the postcolonial experience
- make connections between the Latin American situation and our own situation as a former colony
- recognize the narrative style and perspectives as distinct from Euro-centric and Western perspectives
- make connections between the texts of this course and the ideas of literary theories

Course Content and Description

Latin America is a region full of contrasts; its population is both racially and culturally heterogeneous. This course introduces students to a selection of poetry, novels, and prose pieces by Latin American authors, mostly belonging to the 20th century, that highlight this diversity and heterogeneity.

 Only students obtaining a grade of B+ and above in B.A. (Hons.) will be eligible to take this course.*

Aims and Objectives

This course will introduce students to research strategies and methods for finding various materials (primary and secondary sources) in various formats (print, digital, film etc) and incorporating them in their research. The course will focus on locating, evaluating, selecting and using primary and secondary materials within a theoretical framework to find an answer to the research question. The course will equip the students practically and theoretically for this.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- understand key concepts in theory and research, and the process of conducting research
- explore the prevalent theoretical and practical research methods in literary studies
- find, evaluate and analyze sources of information
- write an abstract and do a literature review

- integrate critical and literary theories in their research
- develop referencing skills
- write a research paper
- understand the concept and dangers of plagiarism
- present their research before an audience
- understand the importance of publishing and learn how to find a proper home for the paper

Course Content and Description

This course will help the learners to carry out research on a selected topic. The aim will be to ultimately produce a 4000 word research paper of publishable quality and to identify appropriate publication avenues. Learners will go through the process of locating and collecting information, documenting, building arguments, drafting and redrafting while writing the research paper.

The following will be covered in the course:

- What is research?
- Types of research (qualitative, quantitative, archival research, interdisciplinary research, digital humanities)
- Conducting research: the role of a researcher
- Ethics of research
- Understanding and avoiding plagiarism
- Choosing the appropriate research topic (focus, conceptualization); Generating research questions
- Accessing information (using the library, reference books, internet etc.)
- Writing an abstract with key words
- Writing a research proposal
- Understanding different parts of a research paper

- Literature review
- Collecting and analyzing primary and secondary sources (interviews, textual criticism)
- Making a working bibliography
- Using quotations, paraphrasing, summarizing in the appropriate manner
- Referencing (e.g. in-text citation, works cited, bibliography in MLA format, footnotes, endnotes, appendices etc.)
- Making a presentation

30 marks of the course will be reserved for the research paper, 10 marks for attendance and presentation, and 60 marks for the final exam.

MA in Applied Linguistics and ELT Programme

The Masters in Applied Linguistics & ELT programme of the Department of English, University of Dhaka was introduced in 1987. This programme is designed after the graduate programmes of UK and US universities. It is comprehensive and has drawn on core courses of Applied Linguistics, Education, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) and English language Teaching (ELT).

The programme is a combination of two strands – Applied Linguistics and ELT. The aims of the programme are two-fold:

1. Providing learners with a general grounding in major theoretical concepts, principles, issues and current debates in Applied Linguistics and ELT.
2. Enabling learners to link theory to practice.

Learners are provided with knowledge, opportunities and experiences which will enable them to develop as ELT professionals. The focus is on grooming autonomous learners who can take charge of their own learning. In addition, team building, leadership and critical thinking skills are nurtured. The goal is to prepare learners for effective teaching in a variety of national contexts and at all levels of education as well as to open up opportunities for the global job market.

Aims and Objectives of MA in Applied Linguistics and ELT Programme

Aims: The broad aim of the programme is to develop an understanding of key concepts and the theoretical framework that underpins the professional, academic and research literature that is relevant to the field of Applied Linguistics, Education, English Language Teaching and TESOL. In addition, the programme will help gain insights into a range of perspectives on the theory, policy and practice of ELT.

Objectives: The main objective of this programme is to develop knowledge and expertise required for the teaching of English as a second/foreign language at all levels of study. A significant offshoot is the development of teacher trainers, curriculum developers, syllabus and materials writers, testers, evaluators, managers and educational researchers.

Syllabus: M.A. in Applied Linguistics and English Language Teaching

Courses Offered

Semester I: Four 4-credit courses each of 100 marks + one 1-credit course of 25 marks

Compulsory Courses

- EL 501 : English Phonetics and Phonology
- EL 502 : Principles and Methods of Language Teaching
- EL 503 : Second Language Acquisition (SLA)

Optional Courses (Students will choose one from the options below.)

- EL 504(A): Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis
- EL 504(B): Integrating Technology in the Language Classroom

Semester II: Four 4-credit courses each of 100 marks + one 1-credit course of 25 marks

- EL 505 : Syllabus Design and Materials Development
- EL 506 : Language Testing, Evaluation and Assessment
- EL 507 : Language Teacher Development and Practicum

Optional Courses (Students will choose one from the options below.)

EL 508(A): Research Methodology

EL 508(B): English in Diverse World Contexts

Optional courses will be offered subject to the availability of instructors and enrolment of at least 15 students per course.*

One Credit courses: Each 1-credit course will be of 25 marks

EL 509 (I): Presentation and Viva (Presentation 10 Marks and Viva Voce 15 Marks)

EL 509 (II): Presentation and Viva (Presentation 10 Marks and Viva Voce = 15 Marks)

(Marks will be submitted and recorded in both semesters but added to the final results after second semester.)

SEMESTER I

Course Code : EL 501

Course Title : English Phonetics and Phonology

Credits : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

The primary aim of this course is to develop students' understanding of the structure and the articulation of English speech sounds, with reference to phonological theories and with an emphasis on how the speech sounds work in both native and non-native speech in formal and informal contexts. It also intends to develop students' ability to transcribe speech using the IPA. Additionally, it aims to make learners aware of teaching pronunciation to EFL/ESL students with a particular focus on the Bangla speaking EFL learners.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- develop an understanding of the use of different speech organs and apply that awareness to their own speech
- distinguish between formal and informal as well as native and multilingual English speech
- transcribe English speech using the IPA with proper stress and intonation marks
- identify problems of Bangla-speaking learners of English, draw pedagogical implications and design activities for EFL/ESL learners

Course Contents

- Phonemes, phones and allophones
- Phonological theories: Daniel Jones, Bloomfield and the Bloomfieldians, the Prague School
- Generative phonology
- Minimal pairs, complementary distribution and free variation
- Organs of speech or articulators
- Categorisation of speech sound segments
- English short, long vowels and diphthongs
- Consonant phonemes and their places and manners of articulation
- Phonetic and phonological characteristics of English consonant phonemes
- English syllable structure and phonotactics

- Strong and weak syllables
- Suprasegmental phenomena: Stress and intonation
- Aspects of connected speech
- Transcription using the IPA
- Pronunciation problems of Bangla-speaking EFL learners
- Teaching pronunciation of English as an International Language: Issues of attitudes, intelligibility and identity

Course Code	: EL 502
Course Title	: Principles and Methods of Language Teaching
Credits	: 4
Full Marks	: 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce learners to Applied Linguistics and mainstream educational thoughts and theories that have influenced English Language Teaching (ELT). Learners will explore ELT theories and their rationale and learn to make connections in order to take informed decisions about context-appropriate classroom teaching.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- understand the relationship and interdependence of language teaching practices and theory
- construct a suitable framework for teaching English as a foreign or second language
- explore the prevalent ELT approaches and methods in relation to teacher roles, learner roles, materials, assessment and context
- connect the social context with the choice of methods and techniques

Course Contents

- Interdependence of language teaching theories and practices
- Conceptual frameworks of language teaching
- Emerging relationship of linguistic theory and language teaching
- Evaluation of language teaching theories
- Educational interpretation of language teaching

- The roles of teachers, learners, materials and techniques in prevalent approaches and methods
- Context-appropriate pedagogy
- Communicative approach to ELT and its applications
- Task based approaches to language teaching
- The post methods era: Breaking with the method concept
- Critical pedagogy

Course Title : Second Language Acquisition
Credits : 4
Full marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce students to the key concepts and issues in Second Language Acquisition (SLA). It also explores a variety of first and second language acquisition theories that help to understand how learners learn a second language. This course will enable learners to connect second language acquisition theories to their own learning experiences and educational contexts.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- examine different approaches to second language acquisition in diverse contexts
- gain a thorough understanding of learner factors that influence the course of second language development

- analyse their own language learning experiences in light of the theories
- use knowledge gained in the course to critically assess professional practice in their own discipline
- develop ability to read and utilize relevant SLA research

Course Contents

- Brief overview of the history of research in Second Language Acquisition
- Key concepts and issues in SLA
- Role of L1 in SLA
- Individual learner differences in SLA: Age, aptitude, cognitive style, motivation and personality
- Theories of language learning: Behaviorism, innatism, maturation and cognitive theories of learning
- Theories of second language acquisition: The acculturation model, accommodation theory, the monitor model, and interlanguage theory
- Universal Grammar (UG)
- The description of learner language – Error analysis
- Classroom second language acquisition: The role of input, interaction and feedback
- Learning styles and language learning strategies
- Learner autonomy and learner training
- Multiple intelligences and language learning
- Current trends in SLA research: Cognitive approaches, socio-cultural perspectives on SLA

Course Title : Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis

Credits : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce learners to key concepts and issues in pragmatics and discourse analysis. It also intends to develop an understanding of the theoretical principles and processes underlying the analysis of discourse. It will give students an opportunity to explore different approaches to the analysis of written and spoken texts and gain an understanding of language in use.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- understand the theories, principles and concepts in pragmatics and discourse analysis

- identify and analyse the features of spoken and written discourse
- explore and examine the contextual factors that influence text production and reception
- show understanding of socially-situated language use
- appreciate the power dimensions of language use

Course Contents

- Definition and scope of pragmatics and discourse analysis
- Features of spoken and written discourse
- Speech Act theory: Austin and Searle
- Discourse processing and discourse comprehension
- Context of situation
- Cooperative principle, presupposition, inference and implicature in discourse
- Rhetorical organization of texts (theme / rheme, text types)
- Conversational analysis and preference structure
- Politeness theories
- Classroom discourse analysis
- Critical discourse analysis

Course Title : Integrating Technology in the Language Classroom

Credits : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to engage students in a critical examination of theoretical, practical and pedagogical issues related to the role and use of technology in language classrooms. The course focuses on relevant research, theory and issues of debate regarding the use of technology in language learning and teaching. Learners will develop necessary skills and knowledge to critically evaluate, design and use a range of technologies in their classrooms.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Understand the relationship between methodological approaches to the teaching of a second language and the use of technology.
- Integrate technology in language teaching and learning.

- familiarise with recent research, theory and issues of debate in the field of Technology Enhanced Language Learning.
- Critically evaluate the application of technology with respect to different contextual factors(learner needs, predominant methodological paradigms, infrastructure, cultural setting)

Course Contents

- Pedagogy on technology enhanced language classrooms
- The nature of reading in a digital world and the development of reading skills through the use of computer-based tasks and the WWW
- Computer based and networked writing development developing vocabulary with technology
- Developing listening and speaking with technology
- Language learning and Web 2.0
- Synchronous and asynchronous computer mediated communication for language learning
- Multimedia learning theories

SEMESTER II

Course Code : EL 505

Course Title : Syllabus Design and Materials Development

Credits : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

The course aims to introduce learners to issues and concepts related to syllabus design and materials development. It focuses on providing learners with the knowledge and necessary skills for designing and evaluating syllabuses and language teaching materials. Theoretical insights, principles and recent developments in this field are also emphasized upon.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- know the different types of syllabus, the stages of syllabus design and differentiate between syllabus and curriculum
- understand the issues of syllabus design and materials development
- comprehend practical, social and theoretical factors affecting ELT materials development and syllabus design
- evaluate, select and implement appropriate ELT syllabuses and materials.
- conduct needs analysis and design suitable syllabuses and materials

Course Contents

- Definition and scope of syllabus and curriculum
- Types of syllabus: Structural, situational, notional functional, task based, skill based and content based syllabuses
- Factors and steps involved in syllabus and curriculum design
- Syllabus evaluation and design
- Designing syllabuses for students of different levels
- Theories and principles of ELT materials design
- Evaluation and adaptation of ELT materials
- Designing materials for teaching the four language skills
- Use of technology in materials design

Course Title : Language Testing, Evaluation and Assessment

Credits : 4

Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce learners to key concepts and issues in testing, assessment and evaluation. It will also focus on developing an understanding of the theoretical principles and processes underlying test construction as well as the practical skills required for the design, construction, administration, assessment and evaluation of English language tests and programmes. In addition, the course will address the most recent trends and developments in the field of assessment.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- understand the theoretical principles which underlie the construction of reliable and valid tests
- understand the processes involved in designing, administering and evaluating language tests and programmes
- design and administer valid and reliable tests
- score exam scripts and interpret test results efficiently

- evaluate critically different language tests and programmes
- use different formats/ techniques of assessment to ensure optimal achievement

Course Contents

- Introduction to testing, assessment and evaluation
- Basic concepts and issues in language testing
- Types of tests (proficiency, achievement, diagnostic, placement)
- Approaches to language testing (Direct vs indirect; criterion-referenced vs norm-referenced; discrete point vs integrative; objective vs subjective)
- Test formats/ Common test techniques
- Item writing and moderation
- Test construction and evaluation
- Testing the language skills: Reading, writing, speaking and listening
- Testing vocabulary and grammar
- Grading tests and interpretation of results
- Test administration.
- Communicative language testing
- Evaluation of tests and programme evaluation
- Current issues in language testing research (alternative assessment, authentic assessment, portfolio assessment)
- Computerized testing
- National and international tests (SSC, HSC, BCS, IELTS, TOEFL, GRE)
- Critical language testing

Course Code : EL 507
Course Title : Language Teacher Development and Practicum
Credits : 4
Full Marks : 100

Aims and Objectives

The overall aim of this course is to provide an introduction to the principles and practice of language teacher education. It also focuses on the debates about the nature of teaching and teacher development and the relationship between theory and practice in education.

The practicum component will focus on classroom practices; practical application of SLA theories and ELT methodologies; observation of language classes; micro teaching/simulation; lesson/materials preparation and self-evaluation.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- understand the nature and needs of teacher education
- realize the importance of planning a lesson
- evaluate the examples of current language teacher education programmes
- specify the purposes of classroom observation
- demonstrate understanding of pre-service and in-service teacher training programmes
- understand the constructivist, humanistic and reflective approaches to teacher education

Course Contents

- Current models and theories of teacher education
- Beliefs, maxims and experiences of teacher development
- Pre-service and in-service teacher education
- Teacher as a reflective practitioner
- Teacher as a researcher
- Supervision, evaluation, monitoring and mentoring
- Review of skills teaching
- Current methodologies in ELT
- Managing change and innovation in language teaching
- Lesson planning
- Microteaching and practicum

Aims and Objectives

This course aims to introduce students to key concepts and issues in educational research. It also focuses on developing a clear understanding of approaches, methods and processes involved in Applied Linguistics and ELT research. The overall objective of this course is to impart students with theoretical knowledge and empirical skills to do independent research, write and evaluate research reports.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- understand key concepts and issues in educational research
- understand the process of conducting research
- explore the prevalent research methods in education
- understand literature review and do a review of literature
- understand research instruments and data elicitation techniques
- analyze and interpret various data
- report and evaluate research

Course Contents

- Definition of research; its characteristics and importance
- The process of research using quantitative and qualitative approaches

- Identification of the research problem
- Review of literature
- Purpose statements, research questions, and hypotheses
- Research ethics, reliability and validity
- Quantitative research and data collection
- Analyzing data, reporting and interpreting quantitative results
- Qualitative research and data collection

EL508 (B): English in Diverse World Contexts

Aims and Objectives

The course focuses on the development and spread of English as a global Language. It surveys the social and linguistic characteristics and roles of English in societies around the world. It examines the status of English in diverse world contexts and its socio-political and educational implications.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- Examine the linguistic characteristics of the new Englishes.
- Understand the roles played by different varieties of English in different contexts.
- Comprehend the debates and discussions surrounding the spread of English.
- Reflect on English language education in the light of current theory and research in world Englishes.

Course Contents

- English as an International Language – historical, political, economic and cultural reasons
- Spread of English in the world – Kachru's and McArthur's models
- Functions and status of English world-wide
- Linguistic characteristics of New Englishes (Nigerian, Singaporean and South Asian Englishes)
- Standard English debate

- Linguistic imperialism
- English as a Lingua Franca (ELF)
- Multilingual language use: Linguistic hybridity, style and identity
- Implications for English Language Teaching
- Future of English

Course Code	: EL 509 (I)
Course Title	: Presentation and Viva-Voce
Course Credits	: 1
Full Marks	: 25

Aims and Objectives

The main goals of presentation in this course are to introduce the students to the basics of presentations, different techniques of preparing multimedia presentations and enhance their presentation skills for academic purposes. There will be an oral examination at the end of each semester. The objectives of the oral examination are to assess students' knowledge and understanding of the concepts, issues, and theories they are expected to learn from the courses offered in each semester. The examination committee will hold the viva-voce at the end of the semester final examination.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- understand the features of a good presentation
- prepare interactive multimedia presentations
- enhance their presentation skills
- boost their confidence to face an interview board
- develop their oral skills to express and analyse a concept clearly

Course Contents

- Features of a good presentation
- Interactive power point presentations

- Techniques/strategies of making good presentations
- Giving multimedia presentations

Recommended Readings

This image shows a full page of blank, lined paper. It features approximately 20 evenly spaced horizontal grey lines across its entire width, providing a guide for handwriting or typing. The paper itself is a clean, off-white color.

Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.

My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound's the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely, dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.
